

Please do not pass any regulations that will reduce the effectiveness of Indiana's Telephone Privacy act.

Before Indiana developed the "No Call" List, my phone would start ringing about 9 a.m. every Saturday and I would regularly receive eight to ten calls throughout the day. This past weekend the phone only rang twice, and they were both calls from friends that I wanted to talk to.

After reading a summary of your proposed rule change, I believe that passing it will reduce the effectiveness of Indiana's "No Call" List and I'll be forced to turn my phone off on weekends again. Please do not limit a state's ability to prevent unwanted phone calls.
